The student may apply to the principal of the school for a waiver from the prohibition after the initial suspension as well as after termination of the criminal matter. The principal shall consider factors such as the probable cause that the student has committed the offense, the seriousness of the offense, the likelihood of conviction, the impact on the school, student population, the extracurricular program and whether the criminal violation is in conflict with the ideals and goals of the extracurricular program. The student shall bear the burden of proving that the alleged violation is either without probable cause or that the offense is of such a minor nature that the principal should exercise his/her discretion in lifting the prohibition.

In the event the student is exonerated through the legal process, the student shall be eligible for participating with the approval of the school principal. The principal may withhold permission from the student to enter extracurricular programs until all necessary legal documents are produced.

This section shall not apply to extracurricular academic honor organizations with existing policies and procedures for disqualification of students charged with criminal offenses.
